

Develop a partnership with the upjv

You are an institution

The UPJV has developed numerous institutional partnerships throughout the world, in particular via the major international networks of which it is a member:

The European Erasmus+ network, the European Union's programme to support education, training, youth and sport in Europe

The global International Student Exchange Programmes (ISEP) network, a worldwide community of over 300 universities and colleges in more than 50 countries

The International Coopération Office (Bureau de Coopération Internationale BCI), the Quebec student exchange programme

The Association of French-speaking Universities (Agence Universitaire de la Francophonie, AUF), a worldwide association of French-speaking higher education and research institutions, bringing together 1007 universities on all continents in 119 countries

Campus France, the French agency for the promotion of higher education, international student services and international mobility.

The UPJV is also part of the Galatasaray University Support Consortium (Turkey) and the Hanoi University of Science and Technology Consortium (Vietnam).

If you would like to develop a partnership with the UPJV, contact our geographical and thematic coordinators: they will direct you to the appropriate contact person(s) to discuss your project.

You are a company

The UPJV collaborates with many companies to meet their needs in terms of :

human resources: recruitment of trainees, young professionals or highly qualified trainers innovation: research partnerships to develop new products or services technical expertise: carrying out tests and diagnostics in the form of services (link to the UPJV platforms page)

If you are interested in developing a partnership with the UPJV, please contact the Strategic Projects and Partnerships Department (D2PS): d2ps@u-picardie.fr

The UPJV Fondation

Since its creation in 2015, the UPJV Foundation has been supporting the development of the University of Picardie Jules Verne.

Thanks to donations from individuals and companies, the Foundation provides financial support for research projects, student projects (entrepreneurship, events, cultural), the improvement of students' living and studying conditions, international relations projects, etc.

The Foundation also brings together socio-economic stakeholders and the University to promote new projects.

67 projects led by UPJV students have been supported since 2015
2 health research projects on Covid-19 were funded in 2021
5 sponsorship agreements have been signed since 2018
342,000 in grants were allocated to student projects
More than 220,000€ has been allocated to research projects

One of these student projects aims this year to develop international initiatives, in particular in Togo for the "Togo Solidarity Project" led by the Amiénoise Association of Health Engineering Students (AADEIS).

One of the objectives of AADEIS is to create a prevention and health promotion mission in Togo in August 2021, for a period of one month. The project will be done in collaboration with a French NGO, Urgence Afrique. The themes addressed will be nutrition, hypertension, type II diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, etc.

The UPJV Foundation is supporting this project with an endowment of €2,000 and support throughout the project.
